DATE: April 29, 1988

I have been informed of our winners of the Scott County Teacher Recognition Program for 1988. These individuals are:

Donald Scott	Social Studies	High School
Judith Jacobs	Language Arts/Drama	High School
Francis Fuhs	Counselor	Junior High School
Carol Albrecht	Kindergarten	Alan Shepard Elem.
Betty Keyoth	Science	Virgil Grissom Elem.

I am very pleased that five of our teachers were recommended for this award. As was stated in a prior meeting, they will be honored at the Adler Theatre on Friday, May 20th, along with 20 other Scott County educators.

26 teachers earn Golden Apples

By Bill Wundram
QUAD-CITY TIMES

Twenty-six Scott County teachers will be honored as "Outstanding Teachers of the Year" at the second annual "Teacher's Night" Friday at the Adler Theatre, Davenport.

The program begins at 7:30 p.m. with about 1,000 people expected. Tickets for free admission are available at any school in Scott County, or at the door.

It was planned to honor 25, but the special committee of educators who studied the 100 nominations were deadlocked. So an extra teacher — to make the total 26 — was added, said Dr. Peter Flynn, chairman of the event and Davenport school superintendent.

The program, believed to be the only one of its kind in the nation, is sponsored by all teacher associations and school districts in Scott County.

Civic clubs and businesses also have contributed.

The teachers also will be presented "The Golden Apple" — large, engraved brass apples as a gift from the Quad-City Times. The presentations will be made by publisher W. Stephen Burgess.

Speaker will be Dean Berkley, professor of education at Indiana University and a widely sought and nationally known speaker. His subject will be "It Ain't All Bad."

The event is the idea of Lawrence "Happy Joe" Whitty of Davenport, who says: "It's time we begin to honor the people who shape our lives."

Pat Oster

Pat Oster, a second-grade teacher at Edward White Elementary School in Eldridge, is a remarkably caring person, known particularly for her work with the elderly.

She helped develop a course of study for Grandparents Day, with 400 grandmas and grandpas visiting Ed White School.

Oster

Her units on experiences with the elderly bring a better communication of students with older adults. "Her charisma as an adult and skills as an educator are outstanding," says Principal David Fairweather. Pat makes each student feel very important. Each week of the year, there is a recognition of a "Beary Important Person" (BIP).

The child has a specially designed desk of honor and receives a special pencil and badge of recognition.

Joan Erps

One singular thing that stands out about Joan Erps is her love for the land around us.

Joan Erps has been teaching science and health at John Glenn School in the North Scott District for 23 years. Most of her students are from the rural areas.

Erps

Ecology Day is one of the year's highlights, and it has been the subject at many state conferences. "I know of nothing quite like her ecology program," says Principal Joe Ragona.

The Izaak Walton League of America presented her its Conservation Award a few years ago, and the Iowa Soil Conservation Teacher Award went to her in 1980, 1981, 1984 and 1985.

Aaron L. Schmidt

Someone asked Aaron Schmidt — who is so deeply involved in so many things at Alan Shepard School in the North Scott District — why he chose teaching.

He said: "Because I care for children." He teaches math and science, and is a firm advocate for children.

Schmidt

He becomes angered at situations that cause children to be slighted. Children know he cares, and they learn from him. They learn to add and multiply and deal with fractions. They also learn how they see by examining cows' eyes.

They learn to play chess and how to conduct business of a school store with cash flow, inventories, reporting for work and dealing with customers.

Melva Lewis

"Help one and hurt none."

That makes sense as the teaching philosophy of Melva Lewis, who teaches low motivation and special ed students and regular eighth-grade language arts at North Scott Junior High.

Lewis

She has taught 24 years, all at North Scott. "My philosophy sounds simplistic, but it entails treating each student as a worthwhile human being. A student treated with respect and kindess will grow both academically and personally. While one student is being helped, so are others. If no one hurts, all of us succeed."
